HIS GOAL: SKI EVERY CONTINENT

Some 57 months ago, Sean Durkin, 28, in commercial real state sales with the Andover Company/CORFAC International in Seattle, decided to ski every month. He started back in October 2012 on Mt. Rainier. Since then, he has done it, skiing mountains in North America, Asia and Europe, will ski in Chile in August, and has plans for a ski vacation next year in South Africa and New Zealand.

"I hope to ski every continent by the time I am 30," he says.
He has learned at least one thing clearly: "Not to ski in basketball shorts because you will bloody up your knees." His physique has "significantly improved. I am 15 pounds lighter than I was in college."
This uber-achiever is working on his masters degree at UW's Runstad Center. Last year he completed 70 lease and sale transactions for over $17 million.

Sean Durkin, 28, has skied every month for 57 months and plans to continue for 100 months straight.
